PREFACE.

At 12 o'clock, M., Wednesday, Jan. 8th, 1879, the General Assembly of North Carolina was called to order by the Principal Clerks of the last session. The following officers were elected in the Senate: Secretary, E. M. Furman; Engrossing Clerk, J. S. Tomlinson; Reading Clerk, Platt, D. Cowan; Sergeant-at-Arms, H. B. Merrill; Assistant Door-keeper, W. V. Clifton. In the House of Representatives the following: Speaker, John M. Moring; Principal Clerk, J. D. Cameron; Engrossing Clerk, W. J. Barrett; Reading Clerk, R. W. Best; Door-keeper, John Hill; Assistant Door-keeper, N. P. Norton. The General Assembly continued in session, with a recess, six or six days, and adjourned at 2 o'clock, Friday, March 14th, 1879. The Constitutional limit of sixty days expired on the 8th inst., but that some very important business might be completed the members remained, without pay, six days longer.

On the 21st of January Gov. Z. B. Vance was elected United States Senator for the term beginning March 4th, and upon his resignation, Feb. 5th, Lieut. Governor, Thomas J. Jarvis, was called to fill the Executive Chair; and whereupon James L. Robinson, Esq., was elected Lieutenant Governor, and presided over the Senate during the remainder of the session.

The author wishes to say that the following pages have not been "fashioned to the taste of critics," for they were prepared very hastily, while the arduous duties of Engrossing Clerk of the Senate were pressing upon him, and in many cases it was impossible to get the necessary data in order to make the sketches complete.

BELVIDERE, PERQUIMANS COUNTY, N. C.,

Was born in Perquimans county, Nov. 6th, 1827, and has always been a resident of that county. His parents were also natives of the same county and lived to advanced ages. His father was a member of the Society of Friends, and was a zealous advocate of liberty, peace and temperance. The subject of this sketch is also a member of the same religious denomination. SIXTH DISTRICT.

ELBERT ALFRED MOYE.

FARMVILLE, PITT COUNTY, N. C.

Born in Pitt county North Carolina, May 11th 1842, the youngest son of Alfred Moye, Esq., who was an honored member of the General Assembly from Pitt county, from 1829 to 1842. Horner, Esq., and remained until the breaking out of the war. In September 1861 he enlisted as a private in Company G, 8th Regiment North Carolina State Troops, was captured at Roanoke Island February 8th 1862 but was soon after paroled and exchanged. He served as a private for twelve months, as Orderly Sergeant for about three months of time and was then promoted to 2nd Lieutenant—In which capacity he served until the close of the year. On the 21st of May 1862 he was captured at Cold Harbor, Virginia, and sent to Point Lookout, Maryland, and kept for about three months and was then transferred to Fort Delaware, Delaware, and kept there until the 11th day of June 1862 having been held in captivity two months and thirteen days. During his captivity he was attended by Miss Mary T. Edwards, of Lincoln county, North Carolina, and her three children, living. By profession a farmer. In 1850, his people will not any effort on his part, selected him as the candidate of the Democratic Cause, with respect to his being for Senator of his district, but he was defeated by nine votes. In 1856 he was again nominated, this time for the House of Representatives, and was ected by nearly two hundred majority. That he was a faithful Representative and served his people acceptably, was evinced by his being nominated in 1878 for the Senate, and receiving the highest vote of any one in his county, with the exception of the candidate for County Treasurer, who had no opposition. His firm and decided stand for the rights of the people, for the working men of the country, has rendered him somewhat unpopular with some of the professional men, especially professional politicians, but by no means unpopular with the people whose friend he has proven himself to be. He is a member of that branch of the Christian Church styled the "Disciples of Christ." He is Chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and on the committees on Enrolled Bills, Education, and Fish and Fisheries. Graduated at the Medical College of Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1858, with first honors. The Principal of the Institution passed some very decided compliments as to his proficiency upon the final examination, and especially as to his familiarity with the science of anatomy. After graduating he located at Goldsboro for a short time and then moved to Stantonsburg, in Wilson county, where he remained until 1863, since which date he has resided in the town of Wilson. Married Miss C. J. Bynum, daughter of Gideon Bynum, Esq., of Pitt county. He has been chairman of the Executive Committee of Democratic party in Wilson county ever since 1870 up to his nomination, and the change of the politics in the county is greatly due his wise management. ### CAPT. WILLIAM S. HARRIS, PACIFIC, FRANKLIN COUNTY, N. C.

Capt. Harris was born in Franklin county, April 17th, 1831. He was educated at the common schools of the neighborhood. He was first married to Miss Sarah Wiggins, of Wake. She lived only a few years, and by this marriage he has one child, a daughter. He was married the second time to Miss Mary A. Harris, of Franklin, and by this marriage has three children. At the commencement of the war he volunteered in the Franklin Rifles, the first company raised in the county, and upon the organization of the company was elected a Lieutenant. Capt. Harris has been a magistrate since he was twenty-one years of age, excepting the period of Gov. Holden's administration. He was the Democratic candidate for the Legislature in 1868, again in 1870, and for the Convention in 1871. He made active canvasses and earnest telling speeches, but the negro majority in his county was then so large that it could not be overcome. His canvasses were not without result, however, for they helped to keep organized the Democratic party in his county, and the party organization in that county is to-day equal with, if not superior to that of any other county in the State. He was elected to his seat in the present Senate without opposition. He is a member of the following committee, viz.: Propositions and Grievances; Deaf, Dumb and Blind Asylum; Salaries and Fees, and Privileges and Elections. He does not speak often, but when he does speak he talks with animation and earnestness. His speech in favor of the appropriation to the Orphan Asylum was very effective, and to him is due the credit of passing that measure through the Senate. He introduced the resolution, and was very active in working up a sentiment in its favor. He is genial and pleasant as a companion. He is a warm, zealous friend, and an earnest advocate of the rights of the people. Very few men in the Senate have as much personal popularity. Capt. Harris belonged to the old Jeffersonian school of Democracy, and is in religion a Missionary Baptist.—Democrat.

EIGHTH DISTRICT.

EDWARD BULL.

WOODBIDGE, CRAVEN COUNTY, N. C.

Was born, on the Southern slope of Connecticut, in the historic town of Saybrook, on the 21st day of June, 1830. His ancestor, the original John Bull, came over from England about the time of the plague in London, in 1684. During his infancy, and until he was twelve or fifteen years old, he was physically weak, suffering nearly every disease that baby's flesh is air to, with several extra attacks of lung fever. (This was before "Dr. Bull," who belongs to another branch of the family, had come upon the stage as the baby's benefactor.) About the age indicated his attention was directed to building up his constitution by reasonable conformity to suitable habits. A careful adherence to a judicious system has resulted in as perfect a condition of bodily health, for these many years, as often falls to the lot of mortals. Few men enjoy life better; few indeed suffer less of its aches or pains. And the secret is an open one—a plenty of hard work, plenty of plain wholesome food, sufficient sleep, regular time for sleep, food and labor, temperance, chastity and a good conscience. His idea of temperance is simple cold water, always and everywhere, nothing else; and the avoidance of tobacco, the use of which is not consistent with perfect health. In his childhood he enjoyed the advantages of the public schools, later of the High Schools. At nineteen he commenced teaching, and has taught more or less constantly till recently; sometimes in the winter only, sometimes the year round. Thus engaged, he pursued a course of theology under Rev. Davis Brainerd, of Lynn, was licensed to preach the Gospel by the Middlesex Association (Congregational) of Connecticut, and was ordained to the work of the ministry by a Council of the Churches. He has always been in the Sunday School; first when quite young as a pupil, afterward as a teacher, then for a dozen years as Superintendent. While in Connecticut, before turning his attention to theology, he held several offices of honor, being Chairman of the Board of Assessors, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and School Committee to examine the teachers, visit the schools, and report on their condition and progress. He moved to North Carolina in October, 1869, going to Beaufort in the employ, and holding the commission of the American Missionary Association of New York, as Superintendent of the Washburne Seminary, then numbering two hundred and fifty pupils and employing five teachers, four of whom were Northern ladies, highly intelligent and of fine culture. After two years he removed to his present place of residence at Woodbridge, on the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad, about half way between New Berne and Morehead City. Since his residence there, in addition to cultivating his farm, he has endeavored to increase the privileges and improve the condition of those around him. For this end he has erected a large and convenient building—under the auspices of the Association before named—for school and chapel purposes, in which school is taught for eight months in the year, by well qualified teachers, (the present teacher being a graduate of Williams' College, Mass.) and religious services. He has also secured the establishment of a Post Office. He has twice been elected magistrate, and is now an incumbent by the appointment of the Legislature. He was a member of the Board of Commissioners for the term of two years. Mr. Bull is a Republican, without being an extremist or violent partisan. Since he came to North Carolina he has sought to identify himself with her interests, and to do so more and more from year to year. He has been here long enough to become pretty well acquainted with the condition of things in this commonwealth. Here are all his property interests, here is his farm, his family and his home, and he claims to be as truly and fully a citizen of North Carolina as if he was to "the major born." Was married the 24th of May, 1856, to Mary Martha Penfield, of Saybrook, Conn., who was a faithful and affectionate wife and mother, and who died after a year and two months, leaving one child, a daughter, then a year old, now engaged in business in Hartford, Conn. He was married the second time the 17th of March, 1859, to Jane Susan Pratt, of Weelbrook, Conn., by whom he has two sons, now nineteen and sixteen years old. —Republican.

time. Entered the Confederate service 1862, as private in company H., 3d N. C. Cavalry—elected a Sergeant—and promoted to a Lieutenant in 35th Regiment, but was prevented from joining this command in consequence of being captured near Greenville, N. C. Was confined in prison till the close of the war, at Plymouth, Newbern, Fortress Monroe, Norfolk and Point Lookout. Was elected to his present seat in the Senate by a majority of 163 votes. Elected to the Confederate Senate in 1861, and served in that body during the war. Has held no office since the close of the war until the present session of the Legislature. Has devoted his attention since the close of the war to farming and the practice of law, doing probably the largest and most lucrative practice in the State. Tendered the office of Judge of the Superior Court by Governor Ellis in 1859, and declined. He is Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and as such had many arduous duties to perform during the present session. He has occupied but very little time on the floor of the Senate in the way of speech-making, but when he does speak he always receives the attention of all within the range of his voice, for his arguments are always pointed and conclusive and the force of which are always shown when the vote is taken. He is a man of fine personal appearance, excellent education, and of superior legal ability. These combined with his other good qualities of head and heart have won for him the esteem of all the members, and has given him quite an enviable influence in the Senate Chamber.—Democrat.

JOHN ALEXANDER BRYAN,

KENANSVILLE, DUPLIN COUNTY, N. C.

Born in Sampson county in the year 1821. Was educated in the old-field schools until 17 years old, at which age he entered the Grove Academy, preparatory for college. Subsequent to this he entered Chapel Hill but remained there only three months on account of failing health. In 1843 he studied medicine under Drs. Strong and Hall in Clinton. After this he was instructed in the Medical University at Philadelphia. During the winters of 1844-45 he took the regular course of lectures. Married Miss Mary Oliver, of Duplin county, in June, 1845. In 1847 he returned to his native place near Taylor's Bridge, on the Six-Runs river, where the sand plains were fringed with the blooming jessamine vines as in the days of his boyhood. But farm life losing its charms he sold out in 1850 and moved to Kenansville, the county town of Duplin, where he was engaged in merchandising for two years. But finding that he did not have a genial spirit for a speculative life, he became thoroughly convinced that for hapiness and prosperity he would again have to enroll himself among the "horny handed sons of toil." So it was not long until he was again comfortably located on another farm, and has been a hard laboring man ever since. He has raised five sons and three daughters. His oldest son, W. R. Bryan, served two years during the war, but the subject of this sketch fought no battles except for bread and meat, and shed no blood except the blood of beasts. He was married the second time to Miss Kate Oliver in 1870.—Democrat.

Was married March 13th, 1850, to Miss Hannah E. Armstrong, of Cumberland county, by whom he has had four children, one son and three daughters. He was a magistrate before and during the war. Was a warm supporter of the Southern cause. Been postmaster ever since 1841, with short intervals. He has always been an ardent supporter of the Democratic party and scorns the very idea of sacrificing principle for money or position. This was fully illustrated in his case in the year 1868. He was elected that year to the House of Representatives, but on account of holding the position as post master during the war under the Confederate government, he was debarred taking his seat, and the Republicans having a majority in the General Assembly prevented his disabilities being removed: they, however, proposed to him that if he would vote with them on certain measures that they would see that he was permitted to take his seat. He replied: "I am worth but little, but the whole Radical party cannot buy me. If these are your only terms you may declare my seat vacant." He was again elected to the House in 1870 by an increased vote and was this time permitted to represent his county. Was elected to the present Senate by over 500 majority. He serves on the Committee of Engrossed Bills, and several other important committees.—Democrat.

GEORGE H. SNOW,

RALEIGH, N. C.

Born July 27th, 1846. Was educated at J. M. Lovejoy's Academy in Raleigh and the Hillsboro Military Institute at Hillsboro. During the war he served in the army of Northern Virginia as Lieutenant in Company H, 33d N. C. Regiment of N. C. State Troops. He commanded the right wing of a battery in the battle near Petersburg, Va., on the 2nd of April, 1865, and was captured and remained in Johnson's Island Prison until the close of the war. Studied law after the war and received his license to practice at the January term of the Supreme Court in 1869. Married Miss B. McC. Boylan July 18th, 1871. In 1876 the Democrats of Wake, recognizing his ability and popularity, nominated him by acclamation for the Senate: he made a vigorous campaign, but with a Republican majority of 600 against him the task seemed hopeless. However, he was defeated by only 35 votes. In 1878 the Democratic party, knowing that he had developed considerable strength, again tendered him the nomination for the Senate. After another close campaign he came out victorious, defeating his formidable opponent, M. A. Bledsoe, Esq., an independent, by 45 votes. He serves on the Judiciary Committee, is Chairman on Salaries and Fees, and was Chairman of the Special Committee to Investigate the Western North Carolina Railroad and the Western Insane Asylum. As Chairman of the latter Committee he submitted quite an elaborate report concerning the workings and progress of the Road and Asylum. He is a young man of enviable talents, speaks well, and has taken a prominent part in nearly all the leading issues that have been before the Senate.—Democrat.

Was born September 15th, 1830. Married December 26th, 1854 to Miss Fannie Alston. Belongs to the Baptist Church. Studied for the ministry and received license to preach in the year 1868, and was ordained as a minister in 1871. Has a farm, from which he has realized a good living for a number of years. He has been more industrious and consequently more successful than a great many of his race. But in accumulating wealth he did not forget to contribute to the cause of religion. In his community there is a very neat church which was built almost entirely by his fund. He is a leading member of the colored Baptist church in his section. For seven years he was president of Shiloh Association and is now Moderator of the Ministerial Board of that Association. He was elected to his present seat in the Senate by about 2,000 majority.—Republican.

TWENTIETH DISTRICT.

GILES MEBANE.

MILTON, CASWELL COUNTY, N. C.

Born in Orange county (now Alamance) in February, 1809. Graduated at the State University, at Chapel Hill, with the class of 1832. He was married in the year 1837 to Miss Mary C. Yancey, daughter of Hon. Bartlett, of Caswell county. He moved to Caswell county from Alamance in the fall of 1865. Mr. Mebane has been in political life a great deal. His first term in the State Legislature was as a member of the House of Representatives from Orange county in the year 1842. For several years he continued to represent that county in the General Assembly until 1850. During this time the subject of building the North Carolina Railroad came up, and he was an ardent supporter of that great State enterprise, which has done so much towards developing the internal resources of the State. At that time there were five members from Orange county, and Mr. Mebane was the only one who voted for the appropriation; and when the time came he showed his interest in the road by taking a contract and building six miles of it through Orange county. He was director of this road for 18 years. In 1858 he was again a member of the House, and in 1861 was in the Secession Convention. He was in the Senate, and Speaker of that honorable body, from 1861 to 1865, during which time he was the Representative from Alamance and Randolph counties. Was a member of the "Andrew Johnson Convention" in 1865. He served many years as Chairman of the County Courts, (succeeded Judge Ruffin) and in many other ways very prominently served the people of his county. He now serves on the Committee of State Debt, and several others, and took a very decided part devising and maturing plans to compromise and settle the State Debt, the bill with that end in view which passed the present General Assembly having received his ardent support. He is the oldest members of the Assembly, but still retains a large proportion of the energy and vitality of mind of his more youthful days.—Democrat.

GEORGE WILLIAMSON,

YANCEYVILLE, CASWELL COUNTY, N. C.

Was born in the county of Caswell Dec. 8th, 1824. Still lives where born. His pedigree extends back some years—in fact so far that but a few know or care anything about it. His parents were in good circumstances in their later years. Were “poor though honest” in early life. They would have given young George a good education, but he had heard of “wars and rumors of wars,” and longed to follow to the field some “war-like lord.” So, as he was a wild young buck and harsh and cruel teachers wished to dress him off, he demurred and turned the tables and the cruel teacher got the licking. Consequently George went home feeling badly. His father told George to take his little hatchet and march off to the new ground, with instructions not to cut down any cherry trees, and, as he was impressed by reading that George Washington would not lie about cherry trees, he, following after his great exemplar, did lie—(under the shade of the beautiful trees.) That did not please his stern father, so he whaled George. Thereupon the young man weakened. Soon thereafter the Mexican war came off, and George, being tired of his father’s stern realities, visited the foreign land of Mexico in chief command of Company E., 1st Reg’t N. C. Volunteers, raised in his native county. He returned unwounded. Was married on the 4th day of March, 1852, in Newton county, Ga., with (or to) Miss Marion W. Hill, who still lives to bless his old age as she adorned and rendered happy his younger years. George, soon after marriage, moved to Danville, Va., and merchandised, and by strict attention to business was rapidly accumulating a handsome less. So he quit; removed to the old stamping ground and went to farming. Then “rumors of wars” came. He buckled on his old claymore, (is this spelt right ?) was appointed Major of the Eighth North Carolina State Troops, afterwards Lieut. Colonel of the same, and achieved no distinction except having had the honor of putting the present Chief Executive of the State through the double-quick. To the education there received no doubt Governor Jarvis is mainly indebted for the position he now so ably occupies. He returned from the wars unwounded, having been very lucky in avoiding all serious engagements where bullets flow about loose. In 1874 he was elected Senator from the 20th District. The people approved his course and re-elected him to the same position to the present session, where he is now doing his level best to spend his per diem, and with every prospect of success. This notice of this distinguished Senator may seem like flattery, but we are sure he knows nothing of how we obtained our facts, and no one will for a moment do him the injustice to suppose he "writ it."—Democrat.

TWENTY-FIRST DISTRICT.

ELKANAH ELVIS LYON.

DUTCHVILLE, GRANVILLE COUNTY, N. C.

Was born in Granville county, April 27th, 1824. Was educated at common schools of the county. Married Miss Margaret J., daughter of Harrison Parker, Esq., of Orange county, May 18th, 1849, by whom he has four children living. During the war he served as Captain of Company A, 44th Regiment, N. C. State Troops. He was by the side of the lamented Col. Singletary when he fell at the battle of Jackson's Mills, Martin county, N. C. By occupation he is a farmer, and is one of the finest tobacco growers in the State. As an evidence of his skill in raising tobacco, we will mention that in 1875 some of his tobacco was sent to the Royal Chemist of England, at London, for analysis, and this great chemical expert pronounced it the finest tobacco ever sent him from any part of the world. Two prominent features of this tobacco as shown by the chemist's statement were its excellent flavor and the small quantity of nicotine. It contained only three per cent nicotine while the average amount in tobacco grown by others contained from 12 to 14 per cent. The present is the first session he has been to the Legislature, but has four brothers who have represented the county of Granville from time to time in the different branches of the General Assembly. Committees: State Debt, Corporations, Agriculture, Retrenchment and Reform, Claims. A true and faithful member.—Democrat.

TWENTY-SECOND DISTRICT.

ABRAHAM HAYWOOD MERRITT,

PITTSBORO, CHATHAM COUNTY.

Born July 18th, 1832. Was prepared for college under the late W. J. Bingham at Oaks, Orange county, N. C. He graduated at the University of North Carolina with high distinction in 1856. Was editor of the University Magazine during his senior year. After leaving College he entered the school room and taught very successfully until the beginning of the war. He was then at the head of a flourishing high school at Olin, Iredell county. The derangement of nearly every line of business caused by the hostilities between the States necessitated the suspension of the school. He then returned to Chatham, his native county. He was appointed Clerk and Master in Equity for Chatham, although that position was usually given to lawyers and was eagerly sought by several excellent members of the bar. This position he continued to fill with entire acceptability to the court and bar until the office was abolished. Since the war he was in charge of a school of high grade at Cary, Wake county, and then later, was in charge of the Academy at Pittsboro. He was married in 1861 to Miss Purviss, of Iredell county, a lady of great intellect and worth, by whom he has six interesting children, and is now living quietly on his farm near Pittsboro in his native county. He holds his present position as Senator by a most flattering vote. Was nominated unexpectedly and against his wishes, and in a county where the parties are nearly equally divided he received over 700 votes more than both his competitors. Was one of the presiding justices of the Inferior Court when he received the nomination for the Senate. Was elected one of the Trustees of the State University during the present session of the General Assembly. By profession he is a Methodist and takes great interest in the Sunday School work. He now has charge of a Sunday School, and has made, at different times, addresses on the subject which have been highly complimented. Diffident and distrustful of himself he seldom appears before the public, but this much may be said in his praise, he is most loved and esteemed by those who know him best. He is Chairman of Joint Committee on the Library and serves on Committee on Education, Enrolled Bills, and Roads and Highways. He is a conscientious and faithful member—ever watching and guarding the interest of those he has the honor to represent.—Democrat.

TWENTY-THIRD DISTRICT.

JAMES PINKNEY DILLARD,

LEAKSVILLE, ROCKINGHAM COUNTY, N. C.

Was born April 7th, 1824. He received no collegiate course—was taught at the common schools of the county. On the 9th day of March, 1861, he married Miss M. L. Lash, daughter of Wm. A. Lash, Esq., a prominent citizen of Stokes county. Before the war he was magistrate for a number of years and served for some time as a member of the old county courts of Rockingham. In the year of 1863 when our Southern territory was threatened to be overrun by the powers of the North he made up a company of thirty men and tendered service to the Confederate army but was not received on account of the size of the company. After this he aided materially in the collection of conscripts for the service. He had charge of the delivering of all darkies required from Rockingham to Wilmington and other places—they being taken to those places to work on the fortifications. Since the war he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits, merchandising and manufacturing tobacco. He now carries on an extensive manufacturing and mercantile business at Leakesville. He is brother to Judge J. H. Dillard.—Democrat.

Of his family six brothers and three brothers-in-law entered the army, and three of the former and one of the latter perished, by wounds on the battle field, or exposure in camp. Senator Seales is among the most intelligent and highly esteemed gentlemen in the Legislature. He has been in public life a great deal and has always proved himself true to the trust imposed in him. He was made a magistrate when only about 21 years old. Was member of the Senate of 1876-'77, and elected to the present Senate in 1878, he leading the ticket in his district. TWENTY-SEVENTH DISTRICT.

CULPEPPER AUSTIN,

MOORE, UNION COUNTY, N. C.

Born in Anson county (now Union) May 8th, 1818. Received a limited education at the common schools in the county. Was raised a farm boy and has been engaged in farming all his life. But a great deal of his time has been spent in trading and looking after his manufacturing interest. He, like the majority of the young men, was very fond of the young ladies during his boyhood and the early days of his manhood, and as an evidence of such association he "took to himself a wife" when only twenty years of age. On the 15th day of April, 1838, he selected from the large array of beautiful young ladies of Anson county, Miss Hester Curke, with whom he lived ten years. On the 19th day of March, 1848 the cruel hand of death separated them. Knowing the consolation of having a good lady to "divide his sorrows and share his joys," he again married on the 4th day of June, 1848. His choice this time was Miss Martha B. Griffin, with whom he is still happily living. In public life he has had a good share of experience. For 12 years he served the good citizens of Union as Sheriff, and this is his third term to the State Legislature. He was elected to the House of Representatives in 1864 and re-elected to the House in 1876, and was elected to his present seat in the Senate by over 2,000 majority. He serves on the following committees: Military Affairs, Salaries and Fees, and Deaf Dumb and Blind Institute. He is a jovial old gentleman, always says what he thinks, and generally thinks right.

He speaks often in the Senate, and seldom misses the mark.—Democrat.

THIRTIETH DISTRICT.

JOHN STEELE HENDERSON,

SALISBURY, ROWAN COUNTY, N. C.

Born in Rowan county, Jan. 6th, 1846. Educated at Dr. Wilson's School and at Chapel Hill. Read law under Chief Justice Pearson, and obtained license to practice at the June term 1866. Married Miss Elizabeth B. Cain, of Asaeville, by whom he has two children. He entered the Confederate service when only 18 years old, and served from 1864 to the close of the war. He was a member of Company B., 10th N. C. S. T. His first appearance in political life was as a candidate of the Constitutional Convention of 1871, to which he was elected, though the Convention was never held. In 1872 he declined the nomination for a seat in the Legislature. He was elected to the Convention of 1878, and took a leading part in the proceedings of that body. He was elected to the House of Representatives for the session of 1876-77, and again showed himself to be a very valuable member. He is the author of the election law and many other important statutes passed at that session. He was elected to his present seat in the Senate by 431 majority over a Democrat opponent, John C. Ford, Esq., who ran in the campaign on the "farmer's ticket." Mr. Henderson is a strong Democrat, but strange as it may seem, received every colored vote cast at the Salisbury and Mocksville precincts. This was an unexpected and a very unusual compliment. Mr. H. has been one of the hardest working members of the present Assembly, and has done much towards shaping a large portion of the most important acts of the session. He is the author of the bills, "defining the Criminal Jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace," and "Prohibiting the removal of causes, except where the ends of justice absolutely require it," and of many other measures of public interest and importance. He is a member of the Judiciary Committee, Chairman of Finance Committee, on Retrenchment and Reform, Internal Improvement, and several others. He is a very worthy, able and influential member.—Democrat.

THIRTY-FIRST DISTRICT.

JAMES MADISON LEACH,

LEXINGTON, DAVIDSON COUNTY, N. C.,

Was born at Lansdowne, the old family home, in Randolph county, one mile from what is now Trinity College, is about 54 years old: received an academical education in the neighborhood and at Greensboro, where he remained several years studying Latin, Greek and Mathematics; studied law with his brother, who died at an early age after having acquired much distinction as a lawyer. He removed to Lexington and commenced the practice of his profession, which became so lucrative that he had acquired a good estate before the war. He was elected to the House of Representatives first in 1848, and continued in the Legislature for ten years, during all of which time he was a member of the Judiciary and also of the Internal Improvement Committees; taking an active part in all the leading measures during his term of office, and was particularly distinguished as a friend of Internal Improvements and the Common School System. In 1859 he was elected to the Congress of the United States as a Whig, in a very excited campaign, defeating Hon. Alfred M. Scales, a Democrat and the incumbent, although the district was largely Democratic. During his term in Congress of two years, he was a strong and devoted Union man, opposing secession, and advocating and voting for every measure and scheme that had for its object the perpetuation of the Union. Was canvassing for re-election when troops were called for by President Lincoln, when he returned home, raised a company of volunteers, and when the regiment was formed, was elected. Lt. Colonel. Was in the battles of Bull Run and Manassas: resigned the next year; was elected by a large majority to the last Confederate Congress: was elected in 1865 to the State Senate, and re-elected two years thereafter, continuing, as before the war, the fast friend of Internal Improvements and Education—holding his former places on the Judiciary and Internal improvement Committees. He was elected as a Conservative to the 42d

Congress of the United States from a district of more than 3000 Republican majority over the late Gen. Wm. L. Scott by a large majority, a native of Guilford county and a distinguished lawyer, who was his Republican competitor, and re-elected to the 43d Congress, in a hard fought contest, defeating Judge Settle by a handsome majority. Before the close of the 43d Congress he published a circular declining further honors at the hands of the people. He was elected to the present Senate, and is Chairman of the Committee on Federal Relations, and is a member of the Judiciary Committee. He takes an active part in the debates of the Senate and is a liberal voter, maintaining his consistency in his advocacy of internal improvements, the support of the charitable institutions of the State and all measures that have for their object the promotion of the welfare and prosperity of the whole people. He has never been defeated for office, though often running with large majorities against him. He has the reputation of being a wonderful electioneerer, and stands in the foremost ranks as an advocate in his profession and a stump speaker. As is seen in the foregoing, he has served in three different Legislative bodies, and has been in public life now 24 years. His society is much sought after, because he is well read, remarkably social, genial in his nature and possessed of generous impulses, so that few men have truer and warmer friends, many of whom predict for him yet higher honors—Democrat.

His occupation was that of a farmer, merchant and mechanic. Married Miss Nannie M. Paine, of Rockingham county, by whom he has four children. In political life he has had considerable experience for a man of his age. In 1872 he was a candidate for the Senate against Andrew C. Cowles, Esq., and was defeated by 28 votes. Mr. Cowles' majority the year previous, however, was 1028. In 1874 he opposed John G. Marlow, Esq., for the Senate, and was defeated by 107 votes. In 1875 he ran as a candidate to represent Surry county in the Constitutional Convention, but his opponent, Joseph H. adjourned without taking action in the matter. In 1878 he was an independent candidate for the Senate against Richmond Pearson, Esq., and was elected by 357 majority. In the fall of the same year he ran as an independent candidate against Col. R. F. Elected to the Constitutional Convention in 1875. Re-elected to the Senate in November 1876 by 1500 majority. Was re-elected to the Senate for 1879 without opposition. He is chairman of the Committee on Public Printing, and serves on committee of Engrossed Bills, and Corporations. He very seldom makes a speech but when he does speak he always says something of importance and his words have much weight with other members. He is one of the best and truest men in the Senate and eminently worthy the high compliment shown him by his constituency in returning him to this place of trust so often. He is a very faithful member to his place of duty while the body is in session and very rarely lets any circumstance prevent him from recording his vote on every subject that is brought before the Senate. In legislating he studies every point well before acting. As a private citizens, Mr. Nicholson is a christian gentleman of unsurpassed qualities, and wields a great influence for good in the community in which he lives. He is now about 63 years old, yet we trust that he will be spared many years longer to represent the good people of the noble old county of Iredell—Democrat.

JOSEPH PINKNEY MATHIESON,

TAYLORSVILLE, ALEXANDER COUNTY, N. C.

Was born in that part of Iredell county which is now Alexander, November 27th, 1830. His educational advantages were limited to the common schools of the community in which he lived. During the early days of his boyhood he worked on the farm, making a crop in the summer and attending school in the winter season. In March, 1849, he entered the store of Carson & Smith, of Taylorsville, as a clerk. This was one of the first stores established at the then new town. In 1852 he gave up this position and began the study of medicine. Though he devoted some time in reading medicine he has never practiced any. In the year 1853 he located at Sugar Grove, Watanga county, and engaged in the mercantile business. On the first Thursday of August, 1857, he was elected Clerk of the County Court, which office he held until 1859. Continued to merchandise until the pressure of the war came upon the South—which caused him to suspend. After the war began at the time of the re-organization of the militia he was elected Major of the 95th regiment of militia. While in service with the Home Guard he was Lieutenant of Capt. Cook's company. March 1865 moved back to Taylorsville and raised a crop that year. In the fall he was appointed Provisional Sheriff of Alexander county. When civil county government was reorganized he was elected Register of that county. In September, 1866, was elected Sheriff and after serving out his time to the satisfaction of the citizens of the county, was re-elected in 1868, but was barred by the "Howard Amendment," and did not qualify as Sheriff, though he served as Deputy Sheriff until 1872. After the war he studied law with Chief Justice Pearson, obtained his license in 1867, and settled in the town of Morganton, where he has resided ever since. ed the University at Chapel Hill, where he remained until January, 1859, when he went to Princeton, N. J., and graduated in the class of 1860. He was married in June, 1863, to Miss Julia R., daughter of J. W. Lane, Esq., of Amelia county, Va., by whom he has five children living and two dead. Major G. is a very prominent member of the Baptist Church, and is at present the President of the State Convention of that religious denomination. He entered the Confederate army as First Lieutenant of Company K, 2d N. C. Cavalry, and served until wounded at Gettysburg, on July 3d, 1863. After which he was Assistant Adjutant General of North Carolina for remainder of the war. He was promoted to Captain in November, 1862. Was mentioned for gallantry in General Orders from District Headquarters for action in a fight at Faicen's, in Jones county, N. C., and especially mentioned by Regimental commander for conduct in the battle of Brandy Station, June 9th, 1863. His first appearance in political life was as a candidate for the Reconstruction Convention in 1867, and was defeated. In 1874 he was elected to the Senate from his present District, embracing Lincoln and Catawba counties, receiving every vote cast. He took a prominent part in the proceedings of that body, and perhaps to no one in the State are the people more indebted for the Convention of 1875. By his instrumentality the Revenue law was so amended regarding stock in banks and other incorporated companies that the returns for this kind of property was increased from $590,000 to over $1,750,000. The only law to protect the people against imposition by railroad companies is his work. He was again elected to State Senate in 1878 without opposition. He is regarded as one of the leading members of the body and lacked on one ballot in the Democratic caucus only a few votes of being chosen Lieutenant Governor. He is regarded as the leader in measures to reduce the expenses of the government and lower taxation. In 1856 went to Independence High School, then under charge of Rev. Wm. M. Robey, late President of Davenport Female College, Lenoir, N. C., and attended that school for ten months. When only 19 years old he was elected to the office of Commissioner of Revenue for Grayson county, and served two years. This was a well merited compliment, for really the law required the person filling that place to be 21 years old, but the question was not raised against him and he was allowed to serve out his term. At the beginning of the war he entered the Confederate service as 1st Lieutenant of Company D, 37th Va. Cavalry, and served in that capacity until August 1863, at which time he was discharged on account of ill health. But it was not long until he was able for duty and was promoted to the rank of Major and assigned to the field Transportation Department, in which capacity he served very acceptably to the close of the war. In the year 1865 he settled in Alleghany county, read law, and since 1870 has been a practicing lawyer in that and adjacent counties. While in the Convention he introduced and advocated an ordinance to abolish the Senate of North Carolina. Was elected to the House of Representatives for the session of 1876-77 by the largest vote ever cast for a representative from that county. Was again, contrary to his expressed will, nominated for and elected, without opposition, to the House of Representatives in the present Legislature. He is a very active and working member and serves his constituency faithfully. He is Chairman of Committee on Railroads, &c., and member of Committee on Public Printing, and the Judiciary Committee. He is a good parliamentarian and in every way competent to preside over the deliberations of the body. He is an earnest worker and a most excellent member. He represents a solid constituency, and the good citizens of Alleghany should feel proud that they have such a faithful representative. By occupation he is a lawyer and farmer. ### NATT. ATKINSON.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Born November 15th, 1832, in McMin county, Tenn. Educated at Dr. Wilson's famous school in Alamance county, this State, and at Hiwassee College, Tennessee. Married Miss Harrett N. Baird, of Buncombe county, February 2d, 1858, and has ten children living. Went into the war at the very beginning as 1st Lieutenant in the 1st Tennessee Regiment of Cavalry, but on losing most of his men and horses in an engagement with the enemy he resigned and raised another company and was made Senior Captain in the 62d Tennessee Regiment, and much of the time commanded his regiment in the heroic defense our soldiers made in the siege of Vicksburg—where with ten days rations that gallant band successfully resisted and repulsed Gen. Grant with more than ten times their force and all the appliances of war that his heart could wish. After the exchange of the Vicksburg soldiers Captain A was assigned to duty in the department of West Virginia and Tennessee, and for the last year of the war was commander of his regiment, although for some cause at Richmond his commission as Colonel was never issued. On the surrender of Gen. Lee his (Vaughn's) and Morgan's Brigades made their way to Charlotte to join President Davis, and in that retreat Capt. A. was assigned the important duty with his regiment in defending the rear, and so well did he perform his duty that on their arrival at Charlotte he was personally complimented by President Davis. He was then assigned with his command as a part of the escort of President Davis in his efforts to reach the trans-Mississippi department and was with him till a few days before his capture by the Federal forces in Georgia. At the close of the war Captain A. commenced the practice of law at Asheville—not being allowed to return to his home in Tennessee in consequence of the reign of terror that ruled there under Brownlow's administration. He afterwards became the Editor of the Citizen, and for several years his paper was the only journal in that Congressional District that upheld the cause of the Democratic party. Much of our great majority there now may doubtless be placed to his credit. He afterwards sold the Citizen and engaged in the fruit business near Asheville, and to-day has likely more reputation in that line than any man in the South, having taken the medal at the Centennial and other National fairs for the finest apples, and through his efforts North Carolina is noted as the finest fruit growing section of the world. He led his ticket in the election last summer in Buncombe, and is one of the most industrious members of the House. He inaugurated the movement of Retrenchment and Reform and through his unceasing efforts a large curtailment of the State's expenditures has been made—consequently a reduction of the taxes for the coming year. He is devoted to the interests of his mountain country, and his efforts in their behalf will be duly recognized by an appreciating constituency.—Democrat.

BERKE COUNTY.

BARTLETT ALEXANDER BERRY.

MORGANTON, N. C.

Was born in Burke county February 1st, 1830. His educational facilities were limited to the home country schools. Like many young men of the present day, he was not content when he grew up to manhood until he took a trip West. At the age of 22 he left the old North State for the gold regions of California, and on his way to and from the "great State of the West," he touched at and remained for some time at Havana, Cuba; Panama, on the Isthmus of Darien; Aspenwall, New Orleans and several other noted places. In the year 1856 he became convinced that the great places of the South and West with all their attractions could not furnish him a home with as much contentment as his native county, so he returned and engaged in agricultural pursuits. Farming has been his chief occupation ever since he permanently located, though much of his time has been devoted to the manufacturing of flour and lumber. He now has some good flouring and saw mills on his farm near Morganton. Soon after his return from the West he became firmly convinced that there was one thing needed to complete his happiness, so on the 2nd day of June, 1857, he led to the nuptial altar Miss Mira A. Hennessee, of Burke county. He has been identified with the county affairs of Burke for a number of years. From the coal region, in the spring of 1847, he removed to Montgomery county, Pa., to the then newly opened copper mines at Shannonville. In the month of January, 1849, he married in Schuylkill county, Pa., Elizabeth Fisher, who was born in Yorkshire, England, on the 28th day of May, 1827. Nixon, Esq., of Wilmington, N. C., June 25th, 1868. In 1872 was the Democratic nominee for the Virginia Senate from his native county, and although the Republican majority had been 1,500, he was beaten by less than 300 votes. In 1874 removed from Virginia to Wilmington, N. C., and thence after a residence of a few months to Catawba county, and resides near Hickory, of which county he was the Democratic nominee, and as such elected to the present House of Representatives by a majority of 516 votes over the combined vote of his three competitors. He serves on Committees: Education, Public Debt, Joint Rules, is Chairman Private Bills, and was on the special committee of three to investigate the management of the Western North Carolina Railroad and the Western Insane Asylum. Capt. Davis is a hard working and very intelligent member. To him is mainly due the saving of about $230,000 to the State in one instance during the present session. When the bill to adjust the State debt was before the committee, he originated the clause which provides that the interest on the promised shall not begin until July 1st, 1880. This saves to the people of the State all the interest that would have accrued on the bonds for about eighteen months. He has been a very faithful member, and though this is his first term in the legislative halls he has made quite an enviable reputation. In reference to his course in the present General Assembly the leading Democratic organ in Eastern Carolina, the Wilmington Morning Star of March 1st, 1879, has this to say: "Among the very ablest men in either branch of the Legislature is the member of the House of Representatives from Catawba. As North Carolinians we have watched his course with pride and gratification. He has been the friend of every measure which tended to build up the great interests of the State. He has fought all jobs with unflinching courage. Was in several hot contested fields, among them the battle of Stones River (Murfreesboro) Tennessee, on 31st December, 1862, which perhaps was a day of as great mortality as any day of the war between the States. He was delegate to the State Convention of 1875 and elected to the Legislature again in 1878. He was married to Josephine S. Born November 6th, 1839. He attended the ordinary country schools and the Academy at Whiteville. The war prevented him from completing his course of education. He entered the Confederate service as Lieutenant of Company H, 18th Regiment, N. C. troops, but was soon made Captain of Company C of the same regiment. He served in the army of Northern Virginia until May, 1864, during which month he was badly wounded at the battle of the Wilderness, while commanding the sharp shooters of Lane's Brigade. In the month of August, 1864, he was elected Sheriff of Columbus county and re-elected continuously until 1872—he declining to serve in that capacity any longer. The same year he was elected to the House of Representatives and has served as a member of the General Assembly ever since. During the whole time he has been a very valuable member—occupying a prominent place on the most responsible committees. He has been Chairman of Committees: Finance, Internal Improvements and Corporations, and rendered valuable service as a member of various other committees. It is very complimentary indeed that he should be chosen to serve his county so long without intermission—eight years as sheriff and seven years as member to the General Assembly, and it shows conclusively that he is a man of real worth and that the good people of his county properly appreciate his ability. He was elected in 1878 almost without opposition. He is a close thinker, a good worker and well merits the confidence of his constituency.—Democrat.

In the year 1866 he, with his father's family, left Raleigh and moved to Johnston county, and after residing there two years took up his abode in Newberne. For three years he was a teacher in the New York Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. This was very complimentary for a gentleman of his age to receive a position as teacher in such an institution. While connected with this institution he was also engaged in reading law. In 1873 he graduated at Columbia College, a noted and very high grade law school, after which he returned to Newberne, and has been practicing at that place and Goldsboro ever since. His party recognizing his ability elected him to represent Craven county in the House of Representatives of the General Assembly for the session of 1876-'77, and feeling that the honor was worthily bestowed re-elected him to the same position for the present session. He, however, attended the old field schools and studied by himself whenever he could get an opportunity from his daily labors. He was in Col. W. S. Devanes' company, 61st Regiment, N. C. S. T. After serving for 9 months he became physically disabled and was discharged from further army service. After remaining at home for some time his health became better and he again entered service as a volunteer in Capt. Taylor's company of heavy artillery. This was in 1863, and the command with which he served was stationed below Wilmington. Again he was compelled to leave the camp life on account of rheumatism. He then secured a situation on the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad, where he remained until hostilities ceased. In Mr. Colwell is one of but few cases where the rheumatism did not get well soon after the war. He suffers much yet from this dreaded disease. He has had but little to do with politics, but has always been a "true blue" and uncompromising Democrat, opposed to independents and bolters in every form. In the nominating convention of 1878 he received 1896 out of 2100 votes, on the first ballot. This is his first term in the General Assembly, but he shows wisdom and ability in his acts that far surpasses some members of many years experience in Legislative bodies. FRANKLIN COUNTY.

CHARLES M. COOKE,

FRANKLINTON, N. C.

Mr. Cooke is one of the most accomplished, useful and popular members of the House of Representatives. He is regarded, indeed, as one of the leaders of the Democratic party in that branch of the General Assembly, and it is but just to say that his qualities of head and heart admirably qualify him for that honorable position. Mr. Cooke was born in Franklin county in 1844, and is, therefore, near thirty-five years old. His father, Capt. Jones Cooke, was a gentleman of worth, and generally respected by all who knew him. The maiden name of his mother, who was of Northern birth, was Jane A. Kinsbury. Mr. Cooke was fitted for college at the Louisburg Academy by M. S. Davis, and entered Wake Forest College in 1860. He was not permitted to graduate, for the war having begun, he volunteered at the end of the Sophomore year. For a time he served as Lieutenant of infantry, but at the close of the war was acting as Adjutant of the 55th N. C. Regiment, Cooke's Brigade. He was severely wounded in the last battles around Richmond and Petersburg, and was captured by the Federal troops when Richmond fell into their hands. At the close of the war he labored on his father's farm and read law with Col. W. F. Green. Obtaining license to practice in the County and Superior Courts in January 1867-'68, he settled at Louisburg, the capitol of his county, and has since devoted himself with great earnestness and success to the practice of his profession. He is at present the law-partner of the Hon. Joseph Davis, member of Congress from the Metropolitan District. He was chosen to represent his Senatorial District in 1844 in the General Assembly, and in February, 1847, he was appointed by Gov. Vance, Solicitor of the 6th Judicial District. In 1868, Mr. Cooke married Miss Bettie Person, and thus strengthened his influence by alliance with an old and honorable family. Mr. Cooke is a good lawyer, an able, effective and popular speaker; his personal appearance is commanding; his manners are bland, genial, and cordial in a high degree; his temper is amiable, his disposition generous, and his character of spotless purity. When to these good qualities we add his resemblance of human nature, and his skill in managing men, we are not surprised at his extraordinary personal popularity, and may well regard him with pride and hope as one of the coming men of the State. He is already, next to his partner, the amiable and excellent "Jos. Davis," the most popular man in all his section of the State. Mr. Cooke is a professing christian, having been for a number of years a consistent member of the Baptist church. He is the Superintendent of the Sunday-School of his church, and a hearty and liberal supporter of all benevolent enterprises. This company was assigned as company "B," to the 5th Regiment of N. C. State troops, which enlisted, from the outset, for the war, and was at first commanded by Col. D. K. McRae. On the 12th of May, 1862, he was promoted to the position of Regimental Sergeant Major, by order of Col. McRae, and remained at the Colonel's Headquarters acting as secretary for him. In the early part of 1863 was promoted to be Second Lieutenant of Company G, of the 5th Regiment, and as such commanded his company through some of the hottest battles of the war—the Captain, J. M. Taylor, being absent, wounded, and the First Lieutenant a prisoner of war. In 1864 was made Acting Adjutant of the regiment and in this capacity served until the 19th day of September, 1864, when in the desperate and disastrous battle fought between Gen. GRANVILLE COUNTY.

RUFUS AMIS.

BUCHANAN, N. C.

Born in Granville county, January 24th, 1835. Was educated at Caldwell Institute, of Hillsboro, State University, and Jefferson College, of Pennsylvania. His frequent change of schools was caused by bad health, and finally he had to abandon his studies. He was engaged in farming up to the war. During the early part of the war he entered service as Captain of Company I, 23d Regiment of N. C. State troops. Failing health caused him to resign. Afterwards he entered service again and was assigned duty in the 1st N. C. Cavalry, Col. Check in command, and remained with this regiment until the close. Since 1865 he has been engaged in milling and farming. He was always a Jacksonian Democrat but never entered into active political life until 1876, he then being a candidate for the Legislature. He was opposed by the negro, Hughes, who was elected by 140 majority. Mr. A. had no idea of being elected but made the canvass of the county to expose a great deal of rascality that was then being carried on in the county and to show the corruptness that existed throughout the State under Republican rule. He was again nominated for the House of Representatives for the present term and after a laborious canvass against heavy odds, was elected with the rest of the ticket by about 200 majority. The colored people of the county have had a voting majority of about 200 ever since the war, but they, like other Republicans of the county, saw that a change in the politics of the county was badly needed, so they voted for Mr. Amis, and he is making them an excellent representative. He is Chairman of Committee on Salaries and Fees, and serves on Committee of Finance. Has married November 14th, 1855, to Miss E. A. Ragland, of Halifax county, Va., sister of the famous tobacco raiser, Maj. B. L. Ragland. Mr. Amis is a very active and working member. Only a few week ago he formed a partnership with Mr. Harper and is now publishing a newspaper, The Border Review, at Henderson, N. C., Mr. A. as editor. After the close of the session he will devote his attention more fully to the editorial columns of the paper. Success.—Democrat.

NOAH PARTEE FOARD.

ELKIN, N. C.

Was born in Rowan county at the homestead of the Partee family, September 26th, 1839. His parents, Rob't W. and M. E. Foard moved to Concord, in Cabarrus county, January 1st, 1840, where he spent his childhood and youth. He entered the University of the State in 1859, and graduated in class of 1861 ; when he immediately enlisted as a private in Capt. R. Barringer's (now Gen. R. Barringer) Company F, 1st N. C. Cavalry, under Col. Rob't Ransom (now Gen. Rob't Ransom.) The subject of this sketch fought with his company and regiment, which under Stewart and Hampton bore such a conspicuous part, through all the battles of the army of Northern Virginia, and was only slightly wounded once, though nine horses were wounded under him and four killed. He was promoted to Capt. of his company, and after the bloody cavalry engagement at Upperville was introduced by Gen. L. S. Baker, then Colonel of the Regiment, as the "bravest of the brave." He was often selected by his commanding officers to go with his splendid company (which never had a desertion from it) on duties of special trust and danger. On one occasion when detailed by Gen. W. H. F. Lee, for detached service with his company, fought and kept at bay Wilson's whole column for an hour and a half, when that General was making his notorious raid on South Side railroad to Staunton Bridge. He with his Company and Company C, which formed the squadron he commanded, made under Hampton the celebrated night attack on Kilpatrick's camp five miles from Richmond, and while no other troops were engaged, drove the enemy from his camp, captured large number of prisoners, horses and supplies, and thus prevented Kilpatrick and Dahlgren from joining their forces for their intended attack upon Richmond. He, with his company, took an active part in the notorious beef raid of Hampton. After the war he spent eighteen months in New York City in the cotton business. January, 1867, he moved to Elkin, Surry county, to engage in manufacturing, where he still resides. August 25th, 1868, he married in Greensboro Miss Lilly Walker, grand-daughter of the late Gov. John M. Morehead. In 1878 was nominated by the Democratic party of Surry as their candidate to represent the county of Surry in the House of Representatives, and was elected over a Republican and Independent Democrat. He is a very popular and influential member, and labors hard for the good of his constituents. He serves on the following Committees: Judiciary, Public Debt, Education, and Insane Asylum.—Democrat.

State troops. In 1852 when the county of Jackson was formed his place was included in the territory which composed the new county. Soon after this he was elected the first militia Colonel of the county. He was elected as the member to the House of Representatives from the new county of Jackson in 1854, and was the member continuously for twelve years, he being the first and last representative from that county up to 1870, at which time another new county, Swain, was formed and named in honor of the lauded Governor Swain. His residence again was included in the territory of the new county and he has been the representative of Swain ever since it was formed. It is very complimentary, indeed, that his people should honor him as their representative for so many years in succession, and it shows that he is a man worthy of their suffrages. He is a working member and does all in his power that will tend to the prosperity of his section of the country as well as keeping an eye open to the interest of the State at large. He has done much towards shaping legislation for the development of the transmontane section. A good member. ## SENATE.

JAMES LOWRIE ROBINSON, PRESIDENT.

FRANKLIN, MACON COUNTY, N. C.

Was born in Franklin, Macon county, September 17th, 1838. His father, James Robinson, came to North Carolina from Tennessee, was a merchant of Note and character, and died in the village that was the birth place of his son, June, 1843. His early training was only what the common schools of his county and the village academy afforded, and a year at Emory & Henry College was added to his education by his own hard-earned wages and the kind assistance of a friend and relative. When armed men sprang up in every hamlet of North Carolina at the call of her authorities he volunteered as a private foot soldier in Company H, 16th N. C. Troops, and became Quartermaster Sergeant in same regiment. At the re-organization he was elected Captain of the Company of which he was a soldier and its triumphs became a part of his history. Wounded at the Battle of Seven Pines, he led his men over the fields of Manassas when it was baptized with blood a second time. Participating in the engagement at Chantilly Farm he was present at the terrible struggle that decided the Maryland campaign at Sharpsburg. When he had laid aside his sword and returned to peaceful vocations, his people recognized in him the deliberate courage and solid qualities of mind that are valuable in civil employments; and chose him to be their Commoner in 1868. He was returned without opposition in 1870. No mark of confidence could have bestowed greater honor upon him. He had been one of a bold and true minority that had withstood the seductions of a reckless and extravagant administration, and had rendered success for the Democracy possible. When chosen a representative in 1872, he was almost by common consent elevated to the highest honor of the body of which he was a member, and when the Speaker's baton was again tendered him in 1874 it came as a palm of merit that he had no right to put aside. The retribution in the history of North Carolina came in 1876. The ruins were restored. The counties bearing names conspicuously North Carolinian, and composing his Senatorial District, called him to serve them in the Upper Chamber of the State's councils. He came without opposition, and was chosen President of that distinguished body. Long experience and great familiarity with the duties of a presiding officer over a deliberative body made it eminently fit that he be chosen to fill this high position. His conduct of the business of the Senate from the assembling of the Legislature until the qualification of Lieutenant Governor Jarvis as Governor added to his growing reputation as a legislator and parliamentarian. No man ever had more loyal constituents and no people ever had a more faithful servant. His Senatorial services were endorsed by a re-election unsought and to which no opposition was offered. He was elected President of the Senate February 5th, and served in that capacity with great acceptability to the whole Senate. His familiarity with parliamentary usages, his bold and fearless impartiality and quickness of decision rendered him admirably fitted for the honored position he filled so well.

In 1874 he was re-elected by a large majority to the General Assembly. In 1876 he was elected by an increased majority to the General Assembly. He was a member of the committee to locate the Western Insane Asylum, and on the committee to cancel and destroy the coupons received under the Funding Acts of 1867-'68; and was on the committee with Major John W. Graham, of Orange; Montford McGehee, of Person; L. R. Waddell, of Johnston, and Thos. R. Purnell, of Wake, to examine and cancel the vouchers in office of Treasurer and reported this session. Last summer Mr. Moring was elected to the House by a larger majority than ever before. The people of Chatham are devotedly attached to him; they have honored him by their unwavering support, and he has served them and the people of the State faithfully and ably. Mr. Moring is a good debater and industrious member, a good parliamentarian and a true man. His decided character, even temper, quickness and experience fit him admirably for the post of Speaker, and the duties of that office have been faithfully executed.—Democrat.

WARREN JASPER BARRETT, ENGROSSING CLERK,

KINSTON, N. C.

The Engrossing Clerk of the present and the last two Houses of Representatives was born in Gainsville, Ga., March 27th, 1831, and is 48 years of age. He received a common school education, and was trained to the mercantile business. At the age of 5 years his father, Reuben Barrett, took him to Lumpkin county, Georgia, to which place the old gentleman moved with his family. Here the Major attended school, and commenced clerking at the age of 17. Leaving this place he went to Rome, Ga., and clerked until 1851, when, in company with a lot of adventurers, he went to California and remained 4 years, engaged in mining, at which business he acquired and saved a considerable sum of money. While in California he met with, and was a boon companion of, the distinguished but unfortunate Indian warrior, Capt. Jack, Chief of the Modocs, and contracted a warm and life-long friendship for that ill-starred hero. In 1854 he returned to Rome, Ga., and opened a dry goods store. This, after one year's trial, he changed into a commission business, and made a fortune. Upon the outbreak of the late war between the States he promptly obeyed the call of his country and enlisted as a private in Company "A," 5th Georgia Regiment, then commanded by the lamented Bartow, who fell at the first Manassas. A few days after this battle he was promoted by Gen. Jos. E. Johnston to the rank of Major, and placed in command of the 16th Confederate Battalion, composed entirely of Irishmen, and with this command he continued until the invasion of Pennsylvania. While at Leesburg, on this eventful campaign, he was ordered by the Secretary of War to report to him at Richmond, and was assigned to duty with the army of the West, for secret service, at the special request of Gen. Bragg, then in command. With this army he remained, sharing in all its glories and hardships until the sinking star of the Confederacy paled into its final obscurity at Appomattox! The Major was engaged in many of the great battles of the war, and at the second battle of Manassas received a wound which will render him a cripple for life, and from which he now suffers. In 1862 he was married to Miss Mary E. Bright, of Lenoir county, and has six children. He has traveled a good deal, and left friends wherever he has gone. He is tall, dignified, and commanding in appearance, and, but for his wound, would be an athletic man. Is a positive man—always has, and never hesitates to express, an opinion. Has strong likes, and as strong antipathies. Is quick to resent an affront, and, when aroused is a dangerous foe, but when shown to be in the wrong, as ready to forgive.—Democrat.

THOMAS JORDAN JARVIS, GOVERNOR,

RALEIGH, N. C.

Was born in the county of Currituck on the 18th day of January, 1836. His father was a devout and useful member of the M. E. Church South. Owing to straitened circumstances our Governor followed the plow until his eighteenth year. When after a year's preparation at home he entered Randolph Macon College, in Virginia, and by teaching during his vacations and with the aid of friends he was enabled to complete his education and graduated in 1860, whereupon he immediately began teaching a school in Pasquotank county and continued until June, 1861, when he entered the army and served in the 17th and 8th Regiments N. C. State Troops. He shared all the dangers and hardships of his command until the 17th of May, 1864, when he was severely wounded at Drury's Bluff, from which wound his right arm now hangs paralyzed at his side. After the war he entered into the mercantile business in the county of Tyrrell and at the same time arduously pursued the study of law and received his license to practice at June Term, 1866, of the Supreme Court. In the year 1865 he was elected to the Andrew Johnson Convention. He served in the Legislature in the memorable sessions of 1868-'69 and 1870. In 1870 he was re-elected to the Legislature and made Speaker of the House of Representatives. His success on the floor and in the chair at once stamped him as one of the best parliamentarians and presiding officers in North Carolina. He was a candidate for Elector from his district on the Seymour and Blair ticket and for the State at large on the Greeley ticket. In 1874 he married Miss Mary, the accomplished daughter of John Woodson, Esq., of Richmond, Va., at one time editor of the Richmond Whig. In 1875 Gov. Jarvis was elected to the State Convention from the county of Pitt where he had located, and having been nominated for Lieutenant Governor in 1876 made a thorough canvass and was triumphantly elected. On the 5th of February, 1879, Governor Vance having been elected to the United States Senate, Gov. Jarvis reaped his merited reward and was inaugurated Governor of his State. Governor Jarvis is a man of decided ability, and is now taking a prominent place in the estimation of the people as the Chief Magistrate of the State.—Democrat.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE SAUNDERS, SECRETARY OF STATE,

RALEIGH, N. C.

Battle, at Chapel Hill, obtained license to practice in the county courts in January, 1856, and another to practice in the other courts in June, 1857. On the 10th of October, 1857, he moved to Salisbury, and resided there until the beginning of the war. In April, 1861, he volunteered as a member of the Rowan Rifle Guards, Capt. Frank McNeely, and was ordered to Fort Johnston, below Wilmington. In June, 1861, he was appointed a Lieutenant in the "Rowan Artillery," better known as Reilly's Battery, then in camp for instruction near Weldon. The Battery went with the 4th Regiment, N. C. Troops, Colonel G. B. Anderson commanding, to Manassas Junction, arriving there a few days after the battle, and remained until its equipment was somewhat perfected, when, having been detached from the Regiment, it was assigned to the Artillery Corps of Colonel Pendleton. Having received an appointment as Captain from Governor Clark, of North Carolina, he resigned his Lieutenancy in January, 1862, and returned to Salisbury, enlisted a company of infantry for the war, carried it to Raleigh for instruction at Camp Mangum where it became a part of the 46th Regiment, North Carolina Troops, Colonel E. D. Hall commanding. In May, 1862, the regiment was ordered to Goldsboro, thence to Richmond, thence to Drury's Bluff, where it became a part of Gen. J. G. Walker's Brigade, better known afterwards as Cooke's Brigade, Heth's Division, A. P. Hill's Corps, Army Northern Virginia. He was twice wounded—once at the first battle at Fredericksburg, in the right cheek, and again at the Wilderness in May, 1864, very severely, the ball entering the left corner of the mouth, and passing out at the back of the neck on the right side. He was promoted in 1862 to be Major, in 1863 to be Lieutenant Colonel, and on the first of January, 1864, to be Colonel of his Regiment. His military service was terminated at Appomattox Court House, Virginia, by the surrender of General Lee, on the 9th of April, 1865, when he was paroled as a prisoner of war. On the 3d of February, 1864, at the residence of Mr. Thomas Barnes, near Marianna, Florida, he married Florida Call, third daughter of the late John W. Cotton, of North Carolina. On the 9th of July, 1865, his wife died. With health and strength greatly impaired by wounds, Colonel Saunders after the war removed to Florida and engaged in planting. Returning to this State, he was elected in 1870 Secretary of the Senate, and in 1872 was re-elected. His readiness and familiarity with its rules made him a most useful officer of the Senate. From 1872 to 1876 he was one of the editors of the Wilmington Journal, winning high character as a journalist and great reputation as a wise political leader. To him and to his brother-in-law and partner, the late Major Engelhard, are greatly due the steady growth and final triumph of the Democratic party in North Carolina. In November, 1876, he in connection with Peter M. Hale, established the Raleigh Daily Observer. Col. Saunders was appointed Secretary by Gov. Jarvis on the 17th of February to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Maj. Joseph A. Engelhard, who was elected by the people in 1876, and served very acceptably until his death, which occurred on the 15th of February.—Democrat.

INSANE ASYLUM,

RALIGH, N. C.

The Insane Asylum of North Carolina is situated one mile southwest of the Capitol at Raleigh. It is a building of imposing exterior, extending 726 feet; the wings are three stories in height. The centre building is 80 by 120 feet, four stories high, with an observatory which is 110 feet, from the basement. On the fourth floor of the centre building are water tanks of a capacity of 15,000 gallons, which are filled by means of the steam pump operating on Rocky Branch some three or four hundred yards from the building. The walls of the building are of brick stuccoed on a granite foundation. The doors, floors, window frames and other parts of the internal finish, are of the common long leaf pine of the country. The entire basement of the centre and wings of the building is occupied by the heating apparatus, water, steam and gas piping, and the large pipes for carrying off the sewerage. The steam is conveyed by pipes to the radiator at the base of the flues in the walls, thence through the flues to each story above where it enters the rooms and corridors through registers inserted in the walls. The water is conveyed by pipes from the tanks in the attic to all parts of the building; one large pipe taking it to the boilers in the basement where it is heated and then by the force of gravity carried by a separate system of pipes to the same points, so that every part of the building is supplied with hot and cold water side by side. The house was originally constructed to accommodate 224 inmates, but owing to the great demand for admission there have been during the past years as many as 275 crowded within its wards. The buildings are well prepared against fire, the apparatus and arrangement being very complete, and the large supply of water contained in the tanks in the attic, besides a reservoir of 13,000 gallons near the boiler house, can, at a moment's notice, be thrown on any part of the house from within or without by an engine kept always in readiness for action. The first act incorporating the Insane Asylum of North Carolina was passed by the Legislature of 1818, making an appropriation of $80,000. Other appropriations were made by subsequent Legislatures, the whole amounting to about $300,000. The first inmate, Andrew M. Holderby, of Rockingham county, a soldier of the Mexican war, was admitted on the 22nd of February, 1856. From that time to the spring of 1878, as shown by the report of the Superintendent to the Board of Directors, there have been admitted to the institution 1,210 patients, of which number 315 were discharged cured, 127 improved, 189 stationary, and 334 died, leaving upon the books 281 under treatment the present year. The enterprise of erecting and maintaining an Asylum for the insane met with very strong opposition at the outset. The success of the movement was owing mainly to the personal influence and exertion of Miss D. L. Dix, whose life has been devoted to the alleviation of the sufferings of this class of our fellow creatures both in this country and Europe. On both continents she has been directly instrumental in the organization of hospitals and asylums for their care and treatment, and in arousing sympathy in their behalf. Through her efforts the Pope was influenced, some years ago, to erect a magnificent institution for the insane at Rome. Soon after the passage of the act of incorporation in 1848, the Commissioners of the Asylum were organized by the appointment of Governor Morehead as Chairman, and the work on the building was begun. The superintendency was first offered to Dr. Edmund Straudwick, of Hillsboro, who accepted it only temporarily. He was succeeded by Dr. Edward C. Fisher, of Virginia, on the first day of October, 1853, as Superintendent of Construction and Medical Superintendent. He held the position until the 7th of July, 1868, when he resigned and was succeeded by the present incumbent, Dr. Eugene Grisson, of Granville county. The other officers of the institution at present are Dr. F. T. Fuller, Assistant Physician, who has held that position and faithfully performed its duties continuously since his election in 1856; Mr. James H. Moore, Steward, who is now filling the position for the third time with much acceptability; Mrs. M. A. Lawrence, Matron, who has occupied the place with great efficiency for ten years, and Mr. James S. West, Engineer, who was elected at the regular meeting of the Board in December, 1877. The Insane Asylum is one of our grandest State charities and ought to be cherished and sustained by our Legislature, and made a worthy object of State pride by all our people.

WESTERN ASYLUM FOR THE INSANE.

MORRISTOWN, N. C.

Owing to the increase of insanity in the State by reason of which the Asylum which was established in 1848 accommodated all of those who were committed to the Legislature of 1874-75 thought wise to locate and build an Asylum in the Western part of the State and to this end sent a special committee with full instructions to visit Statesville, Morristown, Asheville and other points, and report the most advantageous place of location. Following the report of the committee the location was con-

the wise plans adopted by their predecessors. They, however, were limited to the construction of the centre building and south wings, leaving the north wings until the State should be financially better prepared to carry out the entire original plan, and an early completion of a part of the building being demanded by the necessities of the insane. This commission placed in the walls about three and one-half million brick, gave the south wings about seven-eighths covered with slate, and have expended some sixty thousand dollars. It is thought an additional expenditure of one hundred thousand dollars will put the building in condition to be used. Investigation has shown this work to surpass any previous public work in point of workmanship and economy of expenditure.

The principal officers are, H. A. Gulger, Principal; R. S. Tucker, President of the Board; E. Hall, Stewart. The Institution is under the management of a Board of Directors, (7) appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. Their term of office is two years and until their successors are appointed. The Principal is elected by the Board for the same length of time—the other officers for one year. The Institution for the colored Deaf and Dumb and Blind was commenced in 1868. The building now occupied by them was built under an appropriation made by the Legislature of 1873. It is located one mile from the main Institution and is under the same Board of Directors and principal officers. Pupils from the State, between 8 and 21, are admitted free of charge. Total number of white and colored deaf mute and blind persons under instruction at present is one hundred and ninety-four. The Institution is in a prosperous condition. Under the general order to investigate the affairs of the Pcnal and Charitable Institutions, the committee made a most flattering report as to the efficiency of the officers of this Institution and the manner in which they had discharged their duties during the two past years.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA,

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

The University of North Carolina was established in obedience to a clause of Section XXI of the Constitution of the State, adopted on the 18th of December, 1776, viz: "All useful learning shall be duly encouraged and promoted in one or more Universities." In consequence of the exigencies of the War for Independence, and the prostration following it, some years elapsed before the mandate of the Constitution was carried into effect. On the 21st of November, 1789, the Convention of the State, sitting in Fayetteville, ratified the Constitution of the United States and entered the American Union. One month thereafter the General Assembly, sitting in the same town, granted the Charter of the University. The preamble declares that "in all well regulated governments it is the indispensable duty of every Legislature to consult the happiness of the rising generation, and endeavor to fit them for an honorable discharge of the social duties of life by paying the strictest attention to their education," and that "a University supported by permanent funds, and well endowed, would have the most direct tendency to answer the above purpose." The trustees were the leading men of that day, many of them having assisted in framing the Constitution of 1776. In November, 1792, the University was located at Chapel Hill, in the county of Orange, near the centre of the State, twenty-eight miles from Raleigh, the seat of government, on an elevated plateau several hundred feet above the sandstone basin, which traverses the State; a plateau remarkable for the purity of its water, the beauty and variety of its forest growth, the healthfulness of its climate. The land on which the buildings are located, 840 acres in one body, was donated by the citizens of the neighborhood. In October, 1793, the corner stone of the first building, the Old East, was laid with Masonic honors by Governor Wm. Richardson Davie, Grand Master. The doors were opened for students in February, 1795. The buildings are now seven in number, affording accommodations for 500 students, with ample recitation rooms and public halls. The University had attained a commanding position among the Institutions of learning of this country, having nearly five hundred students, when the great civil war dispersed its students and shattered its endowment. In 1872 its doors were closed and were not re-opened until September, 1875. In the fourth year after this re-opening the number of matriculates was 200. It is evidently rapidly regaining its former prosperity. The University is under the control of a Board of 72 Trustees elected by the joint vote of the General Assembly. Of these one-fourth go out of office, and their places are filled every two years. Although not required by law, in practice they are distributed among the Congressional Districts. The Board meets regularly twice a year; in the winter at a day selected by the Chairman, and during commencement were, "The University of North Carolina," and "The University of the South." In 1784 the Legislature passed an act for the purpose of "incorporating the University of the State of North Carolina," and in 1785 an act "to amend an act passed in the year 1784, for the incorporation of the University of the State of North Carolina." In 1786 the Legislature passed an act "to amend an act passed in the year 1785, for the incorporation of the University of the State of North Carolina," and in 1787 an act "to amend an act passed in the year 1786, for the incorporation of the University of the State of North Carolina." The University of the State of North Carolina was first organized by a skilled instructor, John H. Wood, who was of the first class of the services of the University of the State of North Carolina, and was the first of the public schools of the State, and was the first of the school. He held a diploma from the University of the State of North Carolina, &c. &c. The establishment of the University of the State of North Carolina has given a strong impetus to the cause of education in this State.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

RALPHIGH, N. C.

In compliance with section 17, article 3, of the Constitution, the Legislature passed an act, March 27, 1877, for the creation of the Department. The Board consists of the Governor, the President of the University, the Master of the State Grange (Patrons of Husbandry), the President of the State Agricultural Society, the State Geologist, and J. R. Thigpen, of Edgecombe county, and Jonathan Evans, of Cumberland county. L. L. Polk, of Anson, Commissioner; Thos. J. Robinson, of Cumberland, Secretary and Treasurer; Dr. A. R. Ledoux, of N. Y., Analytical Chemist; Geo. W. Locke, of Orange, Assistant Chemist; Wm. B. Phillips, of Orange, Assistant Chemist. The Department has a corps of correspondents representing every county and almost every township in the State, through whose aid the Commissioner is enabled to collect specimens of the various products—to collect and disseminate such information as relates to the various resources, industries and conditions of our people. A Museum is connected with the office, where is displayed the collection of specimens, maps, charts, &c. The Fertilizer Control Station, under the direction of Dr. Ledoux, at Chapel Hill, analyzes all fertilizers sold, and issues certificates, &c., for the farmers of the State. The Department is supported entirely by a tax on fertilizers, and is the only one in America that is supported without a tax on the people. Although it is yet in its infancy, it has accomplished much good and will doubtless do a great work in building up the material prosperity of the State.
